

I am one of the searchers ...

Sister Mary Gilis, R.S.M.

This is a book born in my heart, born in the pain of ending one life and beginning another, born in the excitement of the continuing search for life's meaning. Some people do not have to search, they find their niche early in life and rest there seemingly contented and resigned. They do not seem to ask much of life, sometimes they do not seem to take it seriously. At times I envy them, but usually I do not understand them. Seldom do they understand me.

I am one of the searchers. There are, I believe, millions of us. We are not unhappy, but neither are we really content. We continue to explore life, hoping to uncover its ultimate secret. We continue to explore ourselves, hoping to understand. We like to walk along the beach, we are drawn by the ocean, taken by its power, its unceasing motion, its mystery and unspeakable beauty.

We like forests and mountains, deserts and hidden rivers and the lonely cities as well. Our sadness is as uch a part of our lives as our laughter. To share ur sadness with one we love is perhaps as great a y as we can know — unless it be to share our ughts.

We searchers are ambitious only for life itself, for everything beautiful it can provide. Most of all we want to love and be loved. We want to live in a relationship that will not impede our wandering, nor prevent our search, nor lock us in prison walls that will take us for what little we have to give. We do not want to prove ourselves to another or to compete for love.

This is a book for wanderers, dreamers and lovers, lonely men and women who dare to ask of life everything good and beautiful.

It is for those who are too gentle to live among olives.

Choose life — only that and always, and at whatever risk. To let life leak out, to let it wear away by the mere passage of time, to withhold giving it and spreading it is to choose nothing.

It might be said that the University is a place to challenge old ideas, a place to explore new ideas, a place to exchange ideas, a place to stretch one's imagination, a place to dream, a place to revolt mentally, a place to be concerned, and above all, a place to be a service to your fellow man.

Elegy

Four months gone now,
only June and he had died.
All I knew of him
was these hours spent in books.
The poems were all his, somehow all him. Now they are too sad.
In my books I have not learned to hold back from pain.

I stand only at the edge of grief,
still I loved this man,
and have not yet lost the crimping sorrow.
Perhaps when I am old,
no longer need walk this hall,
no more hear in sidelong word
his name,
then I may know the poems again.
But for now,
No, I cannot just now.

Nancy Walsh

Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; begin it well and serenely and with too high a spirit to be encumbered with your old nonsense. This day is all that is good and fair. It is too dear, with its hopes and invitations, to waste a moment on yesterdays.
